RICS Telecoms Forum Conference 2013

12 November 2013

The telecommunications sector's growth over the next five years is set to accelerate hugely on a national and global scale.

Through a wide range of sessions, drilling down into the key issues associated with this quick influx in demand, you will examine the problems and solutions affecting your sector. This includes the latest developments in infrastructure requirements and planning policies, site availability and valuation, technology solutions such as small cell connectivity and wi-fi trends and overcoming issues relating to rural 'not spots'.

Highlights for 2013:

- Insights from Vicky Smith, Broadband Policy, DCMS on the Government's response to growth of telecoms, as outlined in the recent changes to the Electronic Communications Code
- The impact of the devolution of local planning policies and progress in fulfilling the 10 commitments to best siting practice
- The latest advances in telecoms technology and the current transformation of the industry to accommodate the growing demand for services
- Meet with expert speakers from Government, infrastructure and telecommunications, who are directly involved with this wave of change in one of the world's fastest moving sectors.
